Kidnap and Ransom/ Wrongful Detention Coverage

Wrongful Detention Risks May Be Greater Than You Think

Doing business in the global economy can offer your clients significant rewards – and significant risks. Their employees may travel internationally to meet with customers and suppliers or investigate new market opportunities for their products and services. Companies with a traditionally domestic footprint may now have overseas operations. This business may take place in countries with economic or political instability.

This global trend increases the chance your client could face a situation where an employee is kidnapped for ransom or detained by local authorities. Would your client be able to handle the devastating impact that these and other security threats could have on their employees and their families?

Coverage and Crisis Response

CNA's Kidnap and Ransom/Wrongful Detention insurance provides coverage for reimbursement for losses due to kidnap for ransom and wrongful detention. Available coverage enhancements include Threat Response Coverage and Expatriate Evacuation and Repatriation Expenses.

An immediate response is critical in these types of security situations.
